

Dear Friends,

As the President of the Hong Kong Neuro-Oncology Society, I am writing to reach out to those affected by brain cancer. We understand that while this can be an incredibly difficult and emotional journey, you are not alone. We stand with you in solidarity, care, and compassion.

We are committed to providing support and resources to help guide you through this challenging time. Our members are passionate about finding new treatment options and improving care standards. Together, we are determined to fight cancer and help those affected find hope and strength. We will continue to reach out to the wider community to raise awareness of brain cancer and its effects on patients and their families.

The fight against brain cancer is our mission, and we will do everything we can to ensure those affected by this disease get the care and help they deserve. We're dedicated to seeing the lives of those affected by brain cancer improve, and we are here to support them along their journey. Your courage and resilience give us strength, and we are proud to have every single one of you in our fight against brain cancer. Together, we will continue to bring awareness and make changes for those suffering from this disease.

Our society is here for you. We are ready to listen and provide a shoulder to lean on, extending our kind words and care. As a collective, we are dedicated to upholding the highest levels of integrity in our efforts and endeavours.

Let us fight cancer together and strive for the best outcomes for everyone.

Sincerely,

Dr. Aya El Helali
President of the Hong Kong Neuro-Oncology Society
